

Untried shuttle to leave launch pad

U.S. going into non-treaty area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Development of the American space shuttle has left a world still wrangling over how to put internal order into the largely lawless new frontier the shuttle will exploit.

With the shuttle, man will soon be doing things in space that are simply not covered by the handful of international treaties that pertain to extraterrestrial activity.

There is one key treaty that would move significantly toward an international "space regime." It would be the resources of the moon and planets to be a common heritage to be shared among all nations. But treaty lacks the required number of signatory governments and has not gone into effect.

Before a "moon treaty" finally takes force, lunar stations built with the aid of the shuttle already are mining iron, titanium or aluminum on the surface of the moon.

The commercialization of space is not the only development outstripping international law. The Pentagon's plans for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shuttle have aroused new international concerns that space will become a superpower battleground.

The Soviet Union has denounced the shuttle program as the opening shot of a space arms race. The Soviets themselves, however, are at work on space weapons, such as long-range laser "guns" and "killer satellites" that destroy other orbiters.

The shuttle, which can carry satellites into orbit, is expected to be used extensively for putting up military spy satellites. U.S. defense officials say it might also eventually help build giant manned space platforms that could serve as reconnaissance or command posts for earthly combat.

On the commercial side, the American craft may quickly monopolize and expand the lucrative communications-satellite business. It could help build solar-energy stations in orbit, and even space factories and mills, where minerals found on the moon or elsewhere could be worked into construction materials or other products in a highly efficient weightless environment.

The new spacecraft could be a crucial step toward the mass colonization of space.

2-year NASA delay finally ends

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — On the eve of its maiden voyage, the test shuttle Columbia was poised for flight Thursday on moon-launch pad 39A, an untried ship of the future ready to return Americans to space.

John Young and Robert Crippen, the two astronauts who will stake their lives today on its success, went to sleep at mid-afternoon Thursday after a final telephone farewell to their families.

Liftoff is set for 6:30 a.m. EST on Friday.

Young and Crippen, who say they are "140 percent trained" for their 2-day-6-and-one-half-hour flight, visited their revolutionary spacecraft at first light Thursday, were told it was in good shape, and went off for some final landing practice in airplanes.

They are flying a comparatively simple first mission — orbiting the earth 36 times — with the 80-ton spacecraft later being subjected to increasingly more rigorous tests in orbit and on liftoff and landing.

"I have a feeling we are going to go tomorrow," said John Yardley, head of the shuttle project for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "The forecast is 100 percent good."

It's been nearly six years since an astronaut with the American flag on his sleeve rocketed away from earth. America, which sent 12 men to the moon, simply left the black beyond to Russia.

Two years behind schedule, because of technical and money problems, the shuttle lifts the curtain on an age of useful space when mankind taps the unique properties of weightlessness to create new medicines, metals and, yes, new weapons.

America's future in space rides with the shuttle Columbia. Success opens the cosmic highway with its limitless promises. Failure causes incalculable damage, and months, perhaps years, to recover.

"This is the most complex vehicle ever flown," said Crippen. "If we get Columbia up and back down again and it's in shape to fly again, it will be a successful mission."

"The country has got an awful lot riding on our first flight," says Young, commander of Columbia's maiden voyage. "It's critical, and we intend to make it work."

The loss of Columbia on the first test would mean immense embarrassment and another lengthy delay. The second shuttle, the Challenger, won't be ready to fly for at least 18 months — longer if Columbia's test reveals a need for redesign.

Yardley was asked Thursday about the impact if the shuttle doesn't work.

"A lot of people think it would be the death knell to the U.S. space program," he acknowledged. "It would be a big setback, it would probably cost us two years, but the shuttle would come back, the space program would come back and it would be a big success."

Students take advantage of the sunshine and spring weather by relaxing on the grass in front of the Harold B. Lee Library.

Fun, warm temperatures draw students outdoors

With the arrival of long-awaited, spring weather, many students took the opportunity to lounge on the grass and enjoy the sunshine. The beautiful weather reminds us of home in California, said coed Janet Williams. "I've been deprived of all this light for a long time. I just love makes my attitude and outlook better."

Mike Koontz of Topeka, Kan., was engrossed in some pleasure reading under a shade tree. "If I were studying, I'd go inside," he said. "I can't get much done out here."

Also enjoying the good weather was grounds crew employee Mauricio Quinhoneiro of Sao Paulo, Brazil, who expressed concern for the grass. "In summer, it's OK, but in spring when the grass is starting to get green, it's not good," he said. "If there were a way to avoid stepping on the grass, I would."

The weather is expected to stay clear and warm Friday, but cool down with a chance of snow Saturday.

Reagan's cuts challenged

Democrats offer tax package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee unveiled Thursday a tax package which jettisons President Reagan's multiyear cuts in favor of a onetime slash aimed at greater relief for low- and middle-income Americans.

The administration promptly rejected the proposal.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said the president looked upon the plan, advanced by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., as "less than half a loaf." He declared also that "a one-year bill will not suffice to do the job that we want."

Claiming support from a majority of his panel, Rostenkowski outlined a measure which includes a reduction in the "marriage penalty"; a higher standard deduction; a liberalized credit for poor working families, and cuts in individual tax rates, especially for those with incomes between $20,000 and $50,000 a year.

Rostenkowski's proposal, also backed by the House Democratic leadership, is for a permanent one-year tax cut for individuals, rather than the 3 1/2-year phased cut on which Reagan has built his plan for economic revitalization. Business also would get a big tax reduction, but different than under the president's plan.

Reagan's bill would cut taxes by about $54 billion during the budget year that starts next Oct. 1; Rostenkowski's proposal would reduce taxes by about $40 billion. The president's bill would amount, roughly, to an average 30 percent cut when fully implemented; Rostenkowski's measure was presented only in broad outline, and no specific estimates were available as to percentage reductions for particular groups.

Rostenkowski, notably declining to call his proposal a Democratic alternative to Reagan's plan, presented his ideas in a hometown speech to the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. Reporters were briefed on the package at the Capitol.

"I'm here to define the scope of a bill that preserves the spirit of the president's tax plan — to create a much healthier climate for investment and productivity — and most important, that strikes that essential political and economic balance to pass Congress," the congressman said in his speech.

After reading Rostenkowski's speech and conferring with the hospitalized president, Regan said he wanted to buy the congressional tickets to Neil Simon's production, "They're Playing Our Song." He said the chairman's bill amounted to an endorsement of the chief objectives of Reagan's economic program.

Regan said Rostenkowski's proposed cuts in marginal tax rates were "puny" and were not uniformly applied across the board. He also said that savings incentives proposed by Rostenkowski were "misguided and inadequate."

Orem man bound over in murder investigation

An Orem man charged with first degree murder, in connection with the investigation of the shooting of William Bryant in American Fork, was bound over Thursday to the 4th District Court for arraignment.

In the preliminary hearing, held under the direction of Judge Robert J. Sumson in the American Fork 8th District Court, the state presented sufficient evidence to link Brent Ray Brooks, the defendant, with the crime, enabling the state to try him, Wayne Watson of the Utah County Attorney's office said.

A 17-year-old girl gave testimony based on personal observation, Watson said.

Knudsen's office reported that Brooks will be arraigned April 17, in the 4th District Court at 1:30 p.m.

Until then he will be held in the Utah County Jail.

Watson said 22-year-old James Warner, also known as James Mathews, of Orem, should also be bound over soon for arraignment. Warner is a defendant in the same crime. Knudsen's office reports Warner's case is under advisement.

According to court records, Warner and Brooks were arrested March 24, after police received two telephone tips in response to a plea for information made over a news broadcast.

The two Orem men are being charged with the shooting death of William D. Bryant, who died after being shot in the head while working at the Thrift C and grocery store in American Fork.

LDS Church purchases land

A tract of land totaling some 5,000 acres in Clay County, Mo., has been purchased by the investment arm of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints from the Curry Investment group.

Announcement of the sale was made by Charles E. Curry of Kansas City on behalf of himself and members of his family, and by J. Alan Blodgett, Salt Lake City, investment officer for the church.

The farmland was acquired over many years by the Curry family and was purchased by the church as an investment, Blodgett said.

The parties were represented by Raymond R. Brock, Jr., of Curry Investment Co., and Anthony Sarver, of Ensign Real Estate Inc. The purchase price was not disclosed.

"The property is being acquired as an investment," Blodgett said. "Our investment officers are impressed with the growth potential of the greater Kansas City area, and are adding this land to the church's long-term portfolio.

"It is anticipated that the land will continue to be farmed in the foreseeable future," he added.

In December 1980, the Curry family announced a major sale of developed properties. "This sale of our Clay County farm properties is a further step in the liquidation of the family's real estate holdings," Curry said. "We are pleased that the purchasers of these land holdings are showing a long-term investment interest in the Kansas City and Clay County area."

The Mormon Church once attempted to base its headquarters in Jackson County, Mo., but church members were driven out by the mobs who were uncomfortable with the then-new religion. The church moved to Nauvoo, Ill., and then to Salt Lake City after the Mormons were expelled from that state.

Layoffs begin

Cut worries Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Friday is doomsday for 400 Boston police and firefighters. Proposition 212, the state's tax-cutting law, will claim their jobs and close seven police stations and three fire stations in the first of a series of cuts that could end 5,000 city jobs.

The cuts are the latest results of a measure approved by Massachusetts voters last November that limits taxes to 2.5 percent of a property's fair-market price. In Boston, which now taxes at rates near 10 percent, the law will cut tax revenue by at least $78 million in fiscal 1982.

To balance the loss, the city plans to terminate up to 5,000 city jobs, including 500 police and 400 firefighters. Many residents have joined police and firefighters in protesting the cuts, which also have been challenged in state and federal courts.

East Boston residents picketed police headquarters Thursday to protest the closing of a local station and wave signs denouncing Proposition 212.

Boston also faces the possibility of an April 16 shutdown of public schools over a projected $38 million deficit. But that threat was lessened Wednesday when the City Council approved a plan to borrow money to keep schools open.

Other municipalities plan cuts because of proposition 212. An Associated Press survey of Massachusetts' 351 cities and towns found 20,000 public employees facing layoffs, including 9,100 teachers, 1,348 police and 1,444 firefighters.

A survey released Thursday by Harvard's Kennedy School of Government said voters did not want or expect a reduction in municipal services when they voted for Proposition 212.

Nowhere have cuts been of as great a magnitude as in Boston.

Fire Commissioner George Paul said the 200 layoffs are part of a reorganization that will close three of 34 stations and disband 13 of 74 fire companies, and the department will send less equipment to initial alarms, holding off until a fire's severity is determined.

The city will still have six operating police stations. Bob O'Toole, a spokesman for Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan, said officials hoped to have the same number of officers on patrol.

200 expected in marathon

By GAYLEN WEBB
Universe Staff Writer

Over 200 runners are expected to participate in Saturday's Provo River Run, part of a special day proclaimed by the Provo City Commission, the Utah County Commission and other communities throughout the county.

"We hope it'll be a big thing," said Weldon Taylor, chairman of the Provo River Trail development committee.

Taylor said his committee sent letters to cities and counties asking them to proclaim Saturday Provo River Run Day.

"We expect 200 to 300 people to participate," Pat Shane, chairman for the eight-mile race will start at the Canyon Glen picnic area follow a trail along the river, down to the river plant at the mouth of Provo Canyon, then turn to the picnic area along the same trail.

Entry for the race is $5 per person or $15 per family for pre-registration. Shane said late registration is $6 per person, and those interested call 378-7508, 377-8286, or 377-3830 for more information.

Shirts will be given to all runners and runners' shoes will be awarded to winners, Shane said.

He said the race will be separated into men's and women's classes with a total of 15 divisions. The men's divisions are 13 and under, ages 14-18, 19-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-59, and 60 and over. The women's divisions are 13 and under, 14-18, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50 and over.

Shane said Saturday's race is "just the first of many." There will be 10 races throughout the county during the year, he added.

The purpose of these races, Shane said, is to raise enough money to encourage the city and state to cover the Provo River Trail with a Prefontaine surface. He said the packed sawdust surface was named after a great, long-distance runner in Oregon who was killed in an accident.

Shane said the funds from the races will be used to purchase land along the river to complete the trail and to develop the portions of the trail that presently exist.

The Kiwanis Club has donated $1,000 to the project and will be sponsoring a runner in the race Saturday.

Those interested in the race should register in advance or at Canyon Glen at 10 a.m. Saturday. Shane said the Canyon Glen picnic area is three to four miles past the mouth of Provo Canyon on the left.

Five BYU coeds jog along the Provo River Trail in preparation for Saturday's Provo River Run. The purpose of the eight-mile race is to raise funds for covering the trail with a packed sawdust surface. Officials expect 200 to 300 participants.

Former Black Panther wants to share gospel

By JAY EVENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Former Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver said after he is baptized a member of the LDS Church he plans to preach the gospel to members of the black community, in spite of the worries expressed by black ministers throughout the country.

"A lot of ministers are concerned because they don't want me proselyting other blacks into the church, which is precisely what I intend to do," Cleaver said at a news conference at the Freeman Institute in Provo Thursday.

Cleaver announced earlier this month that he intends to become a baptized member of the church once he completes a 2,000-hour service commitment to the government for assaulting a police officer in the 1960s.

Cleaver said he has received numerous reactions from leaders of the black community since he announced his decision.

"The reactions have run from total shock to real enthusiasm," he said.

He said the church is not something often discussed in the black community because of a lot of misunderstandings.

Cleaver said it would be difficult for him to serve a full-time mission for the church at this time because of his responsibilities to his family, but he and his family plan on sharing the gospel message any way they can. He said he feels the message of the gospel is sorely needed in the black community.

"I believe the gospel will find a receptiveness in the black community which will surprise a lot of people," he said. "As you may or may not know, church attendance in the black community is at an all-time low, particularly among the young people. I believe it has to do with the kind of gospel which is being preached to black people."

That gospel, Cleaver said, has its roots in slavery and centers too much around the emotions and the idea that one must accept one's lot in life.

"It turns off young people," he said. "They're searching for a way to relate to the spiritual aspect in a positive way. I think there is a fertile field, and I'm encouraged by the responses I've been getting from a lot of people in this regard."

Cleaver said he feels a spiritual and political revival relating to the principles of the founding fathers is needed in America.

He said he plans to help this come about through his activities in the Freeman Institute, founded by Dr. Cleon Skousen.

The Freeman Institute is an organization with the purpose of developing and producing programs which teach constitutional principles in the tradition of America's founding fathers.

Cleaver said the reaction of church members to his decision to join has been positive.

Children's parade planned for Provo

A children's parade, sponsored by the Headstart program, will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. to commemorate "The Week of the Child," April 6 through 11.

Rudy Anderson, parade chairman and a director of the Provo Headstart program, said the parade is part of several local activities organized to celebrate the nationally observed week.

During the special week, parents are invited into Headstart classrooms to study with their children, he said. Thursday a lecture was presented in the Provo High School cafeteria.

The parade will begin at Center St. and University Ave. and will proceed up Center St. to 800 East, ending at Memorial Park where children's booths will be set up, he said.

Anderson said children ages three to eight are invited to participate in the parade and are urged to dress up or to bring their wagons and bikes.

"The whole thing is catered to young people instead of old," said Anderson.

All activities are planned to be free but a minimal charge may be levied if necessary, Anderson said.

Building project to receive $6,000 class gift for 1981

The 1981 class gift will go to the Central American Building Fund Project for the construction of chapels in Honduras. A request for $6,000 to send 15 volunteers to Honduras, was approved by ASBYU in Thursday night's Executive Council meeting.

Other class gift proposals that were rejected are a Kurzweil reader for the blind, creation of a $12,000 scholarship fund, and electric lighting of the block "Y".

Kevin Fronk, executive vice president, said the council decided against the gift being used to purchase a Kurzweil reader, because input from representatives of the Blind Students Special Services indicated that blind students were not using the reader they now have.

Council members discussed whether to give the remaining $6,000 allotted for a class gift to pay for a blind reader or to go in a general fund to cover the needs of blind students.

Mark Cahoon, finance vice president, said that since a reader is not needed at the present, the money should go in the class gift fund for use next year.

Mark Griffin, attorney general, said the student body should know the council is in favor of the blind reader project but would rather it be purchased in a few years when it is needed.

June P. Dick, DT head resident, dies

The head resident of Richards Hall, Deseret Towers died Thursday morning in her apartment.

June P. Dick, 57, worked as a head resident at BYU for seven years.

Mrs. Dick was born May 23, 1923, in Cokeville, Wyo., to Horace and Viola Beck Porter. She was married to Schuyler Dick, who died in 1973.

She is survived by her father, three brothers, three sisters and four children: Shirley Stevenson, James, Keith and Scott.

Funeral services will be at noon Monday at Summers Funeral Home in Boise, Idaho.

Utahns released by Brazilians

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) - Brazilian authorities released Thursday seven Utah men who had been detained for more than a week in an Amazon jungle city during an investigation of gold smuggling charges, U.S. officials said.

The men, who flew to Brazil on March 27 in two private planes enroute to Paraguay were freed to travel throughout Brazil, said a U.S. official who asked not to be identified.

News reports said the men, employed by mining firms here, entered the country on a business trip. Brazilian authorities detained them in the Amazon river city of Santarem on March 30, after their planes made an emergency landing in the nearby jungle region of Itaituba, 600 miles east of Manaus and 1500 miles north of the Brazilian capital. The men are identified as Craig Heesch; Kelly and Darwin Ridd, brothers; and Charles Davis, all of Salt Lake City, Davis' brother Frank, and Scott Daniel of Provo and Stan Grist of Orem.

Transfer credits may meet Category III

Another change in the General Education program may mean early graduation for some transfer students at BYU.

Announcement was made Thursday by the General Education Office that G.E. credit for the Category III requirement can now be received by transfer students who have completed comparable classes at other universities. The change is effective immediately.

"We are making the change in connection with the previous modification of the G.E. exam requirement," said William E. Evenson, associate director of general education. "We feel it is more consistent to accept transfer courses that count toward G.E. than to have students take evaluation exams covering material they have already completed."

Evenson said the Transfer Evaluation Office will decide which transfer credit will be accepted for G.E. credit.

"Each transfer class will be monitored closely by the TEO to be certain it covers the necessary material," he said.

"The TEO will gather information from the various universities involved, then contact the BYU departments to verify each class's qualifications for the Category III requirement. Category I and II transfer credit is already accepted," he said.

Evenson said 40 percent of the students at BYU are transfer students. The largest group of transfer students at BYU is from Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho, he said.

"BYU has good records on the classes from Ricks since it is an LDS-Church-run school," Evenson said. "In fact, 50 percent of all transfer students come from schools from which we have good class records."

Students honored for accomplishments

Any outstanding students were honored for their numerous accomplishments and achievements in the Annual Communications Awards Night.

Dr. Peterson, chairman for the department, said, "We've tried to keep these awards as secret as possible, so only 90 percent of you are getting them."

The communications major honors students for employment in different areas and includes a late program.

The outstanding senior awards for the department of communications went to Earl G. Christensen, advertising; Lee Davidson and Kathy Johnson, journalism; Brent Hunsaker, broadcasting; Stanton Jones, media photography; Benson Porter, photography; Linda L. Palmer, Kyle Stephens and Julie Dinsdale, public relations; organizational communications; Walter Scott Fife, personal communications; and Susan Austin, forensics.

The outstanding juniors were: Mark T. Simpson Jr., advertising; Thornton, journalism; Mark Phillips, broadcasting; Bradley J. Fisher, media sales; Per Nilsson, photography; Rebecca Tate, speech and interpersonal communications; Barney Hadden, forensics.

Any scholarships were awarded to all. Within the journalism maior Tammi Wright received a $100 scholarship from the Daily Herald, and Michael Perkins was awarded $250 from Sigma Delta Chi for the Utah Headliners Scholarship.

The Saul Hass/Bonneville International Scholarships for the broadcasting major were awarded to first place winner Bradley J. Lowder for $1000, second place winner Bruce Hill for $500 and third place winner Linda Day for $250.

The Radio TV News Directors Foundation awarded Brent Hunsaker the National Chatfield Memorial Scholarship.

The top scholarship awards in organizational communications went to Randy S. Price, Elaine K. Kamols, George M. Anderton and Gary B. Rose.

The Aloa Richards Award for most resourceful journalism went to Nolan Crabb.

The Press Photographer of the Year Award went to Forrest Anderson.

The National Honorary Broadcasting Society Grand Excellence Award for audio production went to Mark Phillips, and for the TV spot production awards were given to both Mark Phillips and Kenneth Fischer.

The Golden Microphone Award for outstanding contribution to BYU Broadcasting went to Kenneth Fischer and David Hinman.

Engineers pay tribute to Holland

BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland will receive the Society of Manufacturing Engineers (SME) regional "Educator of the Year — 1981" award Saturday in Oakland, Calif.

William B. Johnson, a past president of SME and chairman of the group's Honor Awards Committee, said Pres. Holland will receive the award for his "personal contributions to industry, education and government."

He said the university has made outstanding contributions, particularly in the area of computer-aided design, computer-aided manufacturing programs and activities which have put BYU in the forefront of other educational institutions.

The computer-aided design and computer-aided manufacturing programs at BYU are widely recognized as some of the best university programs in the United States, Johnson said.

City will seek canyon landfill

Provo City is preparing to submit letters to the state and county health directors in an effort to acquire 20 acres of land in Provo Canyon to be used as a temporary landfill site.

Dave Gunn, public works director, said environmental impact studies have been done and the site looks favorable for a temporary landfill project.

He said the site will eventually be developed into a rifle range for a gun club, local citizens and possibly a site for police department training.

Gunn said the canyon site is an alternative to the previously requested site near Elberta in southern Utah County. Use of the 640-acre Elberta site is presently prevented due to court action between Provo City and the county.

Gunn said the temporary canyon project would last about three to five years before additional landfill sites would be needed. If the Elberta site were approved, he said, it would be adequate for another 50 years.

Commissioner A. John Clarke said Provo's present landfill site, which has been complimented as "the best landfill site in the state," is projected to be full within six months.

Becky to receive transplant

Totals for the Becky Barton Fund reached $125,000 Thursday, and contributions toward Becky's bone marrow transplant scheduled for next week continue to come in, according to a Gerri Larson, spokeswoman for the fund.

Mrs. Larson said Becky, the 13-year-old Orem girl suffering from acute myelogenous leukemia (AML), will be leaving Sunday morning for Los Angeles where she will receive the transplant. Accompanying Becky will be her mother and sister.

"Becky will enter UCLA Medical Center Monday morning," she said.

The transplant should be next week, though the time is uncertain, Mrs. Larson said. Becky will undergo blood tests and other clinical tests before the transplant will be performed.

Becky's sister Audrey will donate bone marrow for the transplant.

Mrs. Larson said activities to raise money for the Becky Barton Fund are still underway.

Pres. Holland remembers retired cook

Talk about being on the beam!

That's what Ada Knudson, a retired BYU employee, thought when she received a potted floral arrangement from university administrators during a hospital stay last week.

Mrs. Knudson, 74, worked as a cook on campus for more than 13 years before her retirement in 1971. She served under Presidents Ernest L. Wilkinson and Dallin H. Oaks, but not under President Jeffrey R. Holland, from whom she received the get-well wishes.

"I wanted to express my thanks to every one," Mrs. Knudson said, adding that she also received a gift during a previous hospital visit. "I wrote this letter to express my appreciation."

"To Brigham Young University president, faculty and staff:

Talk about being on the beam! How you folks keep so abreast is always a mystery to me! Thank you so very much for your thoughtfulness and for the beautiful floral pottery arrangement. It really made my day and my week.

With love, Ada Knudson."

Spurs fear 'home court jinx'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stan Albeck, coach of the San Antonio Spurs, says he's happy to be hitting the trail because of a tendency toward the home court disadvantage in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"We're looking forward to going to Houston," said Albeck after the Spurs played racehorse basketball to beat the Rockets 125-112 Wednesday night in San Antonio. "Take a look at the Western Conference playoffs. Ten of 16 games have been won by road teams. I don't think the home court means anything."

Albeck's case for the home court disadvantage was half-right in San Antonio, where the Spurs dropped the opener before evening their Western Conference semifinal series at 1-1. The teams meet in Houston Friday night.

In other action Friday night, Philadelphia is at Milwaukee and Boston plays at Chicago in the Eastern Conference semifinals, while Phoenix is at Kansas City in the Western Conference playoffs.

A .500 split at home was achieved in two of the other best-of-seven series. Philadelphia and Milwaukee are even at 1-1, as are Kansas City and Phoenix. Only the Boston Celtics proved to be totally inhospitable as hosts, beating Chicago in both games.

San Antonio was able to even its series by picking up the pace against the bulky Rockets. "Everything just fell into place for us," said Spurs power forward Mark Olberding, who scored a career-high 34 points and teamed with Paul Griffin to hold Moses Malone to 21 points and 12 rebounds.

The Rockets had continued the momentum of their upset of defending champion Los Angeles with a 107-98 victory over San Antonio Tuesday night. In the mini-series against the Lakers, the Rockets won twice on the road, including the decisive game, and lost at home.

Calvin Murphy, the Rockets' dynamic guard, said Houston was satisfied with the road split in San Antonio. "Now we go home to a really big game," he said after his 34-point performance. "We came and did what we had to do to stay in control of the playoffs."

Netters easily rout Weber

After being humiliated at BYU last month, the Weber Wildcats hosted the BYU men's tennis team Wednesday evening only to be reminded of the superiority of the Cougars.

At last month's showing, the Cougars downgraded the Wildcats in an 8-1 victory. Wednesday night, Weber still couldn't compete with BYU, losing 7-2.

"We did well, considering we played outside and it was a little windy," Coach Larry Hall said.

BYU played well enough to win all its doubles matches. The No.1 doubles team, Michael Codiga and Rich Bohne, played a three-set match against Barry Nissembaum and Kevin Esterly, finally winning 6-7, 6-4, 6-2. Russ Thompson and Matt Murphy maneuvered around Frank Karam and Walt Prisbrey in a 6-3, 6-4 victory. Rick Fought and Thane Pope outplayed Kay Barney and Mat landolo, 6-1, 6-4.

In singles play, Fought lost to Nissembaum, 6-4, 6-3, and Rich Kirkham was defeated by Karam, 6-2, 7-5, in the two losses of the evening.

The team is entered in the Hamilton Racquet Open Doubles Championship in Salt Lake City Monday.

Y to face Washington

BYU women's track team will meet its greatest challenge of the young season against the Huskies of Washington Saturday in Seattle.

BYU's tracksters have already qualified 19 of their athletes for regional competition and the next goal will be to qualify individuals for nationals.

In what has been an outstanding first two weeks of the season, the Cougars appear to have accomplished the first hurdle of qualifying their athletes for regionals and will now set their sights on national qualification.

The Cougars are looking to increase their eligibility numbers for regional competition and look to be on track in their goal to qualify tracksters for nationals.

Craig Poole, women's track coach said, "By competing against tough competitors this weekend we should get more athletes qualifying for nationals. We'll enter several athletes in events they haven't competed in so far to attempt to qualify more for regionals."

Orem league to begin

By KENNETH CLUFF
Universe Staff Writer

Registration for the Orem baseball league will be Monday and Tuesday.

Dennis Day, director of the adult and youth sports programs, said plans for 40 teams of 18 players apiece to participate in city-league baseball have been made. He said eight additional teams could be admitted if there is enough demand. He said current plans call for five eight-team divisions.

Jerry Ortiz, Orem's Recreation Center director, said the teams which played in the league last year will get to register on Monday and all others can register the following day on a first-come, first-served basis. He said 36 teams played in the league last year.

Day said there will be three classes within the league: Class A, with one division, will be for highly-skilled and competitive teams. Class B, which will have three divisions, will be for teams that want to compete but do not have the skill of a Class A team. He said the remaining division will be Class C, for teams who just want to play ball without really competing.

Entry fees will be $230 per team. Each team in the league will play at least twice a week for eight weeks, not counting tournament play at the end of the season. The cost figures out to about 80 cents per player per game for an 18-man team.

In addition, he said teams will be required to wear matching jerseys.

Ortiz said there will be four one-hour games played on the center's four lighted fields each night, Monday through Friday. If demand is great enough, league play will be expanded to Saturday night to allow eight additional teams to play in the league.

There will also be a coed league.

Miller leads in Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Johnny Miller, golf's comeback kid, conquered slick, fast greens with a new putting grip, shot a solid, 3-under-par 69 and tied three others for the first-round lead Thursday in the 45th Masters.

Miller was once the game's Golden Boy but a struggling also-ran in the throes of a long, mysterious slump until he turned it all around a year ago. He shared the top spot in this annual spring classic with Greg Norman, an Australian holding gaudy international credentials but a golfing unknown to most Americans, Lon Hinkle, one of the longest hitters in the game, and Curtis Strange.

Jack Nicklaus, who pushed his record collection of major professional titles to 17 with victories last year in the U.S. Open and the PGA, and Tom Watson, the out-standing player in the game over the last four seasons, put themselves in position to challenge for this coveted title.

Nicklaus, winner of a record five Masters, shot a 70 despite a poor start and a balky put-ter. Watson was another stroke behind at 71, only two off the lead.

"I'm pleased with the 71," said Watson, who has been fighting swing troubles all season. "It very easily could have been a couple of shots better. My swing was a little more comfortable. I hit some good shots. I'm encouraged."

striking and very dis-pleased with his putting.

"As far as striking the ball is concerned, this is one of the best rounds I've ever played here," he said. "If anyone else had been putting for me, it could have been a very good round."

BYU STUDENT HEALTH PLAN

SUMMER AWAY (OFF CAMPUS) COVERAGE

AND TEMPORARY CONTINUATION FOR GRADUATING SENIORS

Eligible BYU students who are now enrolled may wish to enroll in the Deseret Mutual Benefit Association "SUMMER AWAY" (off campus) Health Plan.

By having this coverage, you will be protected under the plan provisions whether on or off campus for the 1981 summer period. This special enrollment is designed to assist those who do not plan to attend summer school but will be returning to BYU next fall.

TO ENROLL: Pick up an enrollment form at the information booths in the ASB, ELWC, or the Insurance office (C-173 ASB). Indicate the type of coverage desired and send the completed form with your check or money order to Deseret Mutual Benefit Association. You must complete the enrollment form and pay the premium in full for the entire summer period.

It is advisable to continue your health insurance coverage for the full year to avoid any inadvertent lapse in coverage.

Those remaining on campus as students during the summer should use the insurance card from the registration packet.

Please direct all questions to Deseret Mutual or ASB Rm. C-173, BYU Ext. 4468.

Coverage must be purchased prior to April 30, 1981.

A new benefit—Graduating Seniors who have been enrolled for the previous year may elect to enroll in our Continuing Temporary Coverage (the same plan) for 30-60-90 days.

Post Graduation Temporary Coverage:

'K' sets pitching records

By RICK WOODEN
Universe Sports Writer

Peter Kendrick came to BYU as a freshman with the goal of being the top pitcher on the Cougar baseball team.

One year later, Kendrick is not only the top pitcher, but setting records in the process.

Peter "K" Kendrick, as he is known by his teammates, has already thrown two no-hitters this season, a feat never before accomplished by a BYU pitcher.

In addition, with his shutout against the Air Force Academy today, he has now held five consecutive scoreless games pitched in an 8-2 record.

His first love has always been fishing," said Kendrick. "In high school I was a pitcher and I've always pitched."

At 5-8 and 160 pounds, Kendrick is tall for a pitcher. "I look at the other guys and they are all 6 feet or less. It makes me ask myself, 'How can I do it, how I can make it,'" Kendrick said. "My size is like my strength. It makes me work hard."

Coming to Provo with the expectations of starting, Kendrick did expect that at the beginning of the season. But a few poor performances led to the coach shifting him to the bullpen to pitch as a reliever.

"I said the switch was all right as long as they would give me the chance to pitch," said the left-handed ace. "That's all I wanted."

After a disappointing 2-2 record in his rookie season, he and fellow Cougar David Eldredge went to Alaska to play summer league. After a few weeks that fell through,

"I had to stop and figure out what to do," Kendrick said. "I just decided to go back to Hawaii and get a job."

Unable to play baseball, the sophomore sensation lifted weights, and practiced pitching every day after work.

When I came back to BYU in the fall, he recalled, "I decided I was going to be the team's No. 1 pitcher."

Looking at the prospects, he was confident he could be the Cougars' ace man on the mound. Establishing himself early with consistent pitching, he is making history at BYU.

He goes out to pitch with confidence and his teammates can see their best. Lack of confidence in one of his problems during his freshman season.

The older players would come to the mound and tell me what to do," Kendrick said. "It made me feel like I didn't have confidence in me."

This year, I just go out there and pitch," Kendrick said. "And they don't say anything to me. They have confidence that I can do my job."

After growing up surrounded by palm beaches and palm trees, doing his job in Provo's unpredictable weather took some getting used to. When he first saw what the cold weather was like, Kendrick would tell himself, "How do these guys do it?"

Peter Kendrick, shown winding up to strike out another batter, has made life difficult for opposing batters by hurling two no-hitters and five shutouts.

Kendrick combats the cold by donning three T-shirts and two pairs of socks. "It's an adjustment you have to make. You just have to take more time warming up."

The southpaw said that one of the pluses of playing at BYU was having Eldredge as his catcher. But it wasn't always that way.

"I've thrown to him before on summer teams in Hawaii," he said. "When we first started, Eldredge's dad was the coach."

The two athletes suffered from poor communication as Eldredge would give the sign for a certain pitch and Kendrick would constantly shake him off and throw something else.

"Dave went up to his dad and said, 'This guy doesn't like me. He keeps shaking off all the signs I give him,'" Kendrick said.

Looking at the way the two work together now, it would be hard to imagine the two ever having problems. "It's like we think just the same, and I hardly ever change a call," Kendrick said.

Asked about his high number of strikeouts, Kendrick says the biggest thing is just getting the batter out.

Strikeouts, shutouts and no-hitters have professional baseball scouts looking in his direction. "I'd like to give it (professional baseball) a try."

ready for double dual

On the surface it has the makings of a rivalry feud. But it's officially listed as a dual-track and field event involving Washington, Washington State and Sam Young.

The three teams, two of which are labeled as "A" teams, are scheduled to meet on the University of Washington oval track this coming Saturday afternoon.

The meet will be scored as a double dual meet.

On the 19 events on Saturday afternoon's meet, the Cougars from Provo would seem to have the best edge in the races involving Agberto Guimaraes (800 meters) and Doug Padilla (1,500 meters).

Air Supply: marvelous

Universe photos by Robert Harries

By DONNA IKEGAMI

As strains of a Bach fugue pierced through the darkened Marriott Center, the crowd cheered and clapped, restlessly waiting. The suspense heightened. Members of Air Supply slowly filed on stage greeted by an enthusiastic audience.

Since the group started their tour last week,

Russell Hitchcock said BYU audience was the biggest they played to.

Performing favorites like "Lost in Love," "All Out of Love," and "Every Woman in the World," the Australian group thrilled the BYU audience. Lead singer Russell Hitchcock had a throat infection, but no one could have guessed as he reached the high notes with his falsetto voice.

For the past three months, the group has been recording their third album 12 hours a day and six days a week. They sang their soon-to-be-released single, "The One That You Love" for the first time anywhere. They sang several other songs from the new album which will be released May 30.

Air Supply has enjoyed a rise in popularity in the last year; the group is the first Australian band that ever made number one in America.

According to Russell, American and Australian tastes in music are quite different. "American audiences are more refined," Russell said. "They go out and listen to what they want to hear."

"There's a trend in America toward country and MOR (middle of the road)," Russell said. He added that Australians don't appreciate MOR-type

Japanese girls can spend thousands on wardrobe

By GINA ALLEN
Universe staff writer

The cost of spring clothing getting you down? You feel as though you're spending more every year for that new spring suit or dress?

Student Takako Murakami says shoppers in America really have nothing to complain about. Japanese girls pay up to $7,000 for a kimono.

Murakami said girls in Japan usually own their kimonos only two or three times a year. However even the least expensive kimono, made of cotton, must be entirely hand sewn and costs a minimum of $75.

Kimonos were worn every day 150 years ago. Today, girls usually wear kimonos to the homes of friends, the fall festival or other big events or ceremonies. Miss Murakami, an art major, estimated that one-third of the girls at the festival will wear the traditional dress.

Murakami is not from a wealthy family, but she learned about kimono arranging and the tea ceremony, (before she joined the Mormon Church), Miss Murakami said. "So I have about 10 kimonos, because you need kimonos for those things."

Murakami said there are different kinds of kimonos. Kimonos for women are patterned with various designs. The type of flower in the fabric determines what season of the year it may be worn. The most formal type is called "furisode" and is made of pure silk. It can include gold or silver threads and is usually the brightest in color.

Less formal kimonos have two names, "happi," which is closest to being formal, and "mesage," which is more plain. Casual kimonos are made of cotton or wool and are less expensive.

Murakami said Japanese can tell if a girl is single or married by the sleeve length of the kimono. Single women wear long sleeves and married women wear shorter sleeves. She also said the single girl's kimonos are much more expensive in the design of the fabric.

Murakami said when a girl reaches the age of 20, parents hold a Japanese "coming-out" ceremony for her. It's also a ceremony and is called "Seijin Day." On this day the girl's parents give her a formal kimono. "Recently, girls would wear western clothes so their parents buy a car or western clothes," Miss Murakami said.

It takes a Japanese girl an hour to get her kimono on. Miss Murakami said women of the older generation "probably take only 10 minutes to get theirs on, but since modern-day girls rarely wear kimonos, it takes them longer to figure out how to wear them."

Wearing of the kimono involves more than just fastening the buttons of a dress. There are many parts to the outfit. The main parts of the kimono are the undergarments, kimono and the obi. The obi is a wide sash that goes around the waist and ties in the back.

Murakami indicated that, like the kimono, different features of the obi determine its formality. A very formal one is pure silk and decorated with gold and silver threads; it also has a pattern all over the fabric. A less formal kimono may have the design only on the part of the obi that hits the waist and the part that shows in the back. It also can be made of wool or cotton, rather than silk. She said the obi and the kimono cost about the same.

Kimonos are all the same basic style and incorporate the same elements except for the ones they bury their dead in. These are all white, and instead of the front closing from left to right, they are closed from right to left. Miss Murakami said Japanese, like westerners, wear black to funerals.

She said hakamas (traditional Japanese attire for males) are not very popular apparel for men now. Sometimes single men will wear them for Adult Day, but the men's kimonos are usually quite plain and are dark in color.

Disney presents symposium

Walt Disney Productions will be presenting a forum at BYU tonight at 7 in the East Ballroom, ELWC. Sponsored at 33 universities across the nation, "Disney on Film — A Forum on Animation and Fantasy Film Making in the '80s" will include a 50-minute film on Disney's current goals and operations, followed by a panel discussion including Disney personnel C. Robert Moore, Ron Clements and Mark Sturdivant.

In the film, Disney animators Kirk Douglas, Shelley Duvall, Ray Bradbury and others discuss their crafts. Previews of Disney's next two animated features, "The Fox and the Hound" and "The Black Cauldron," will be presented along with clips from "Dragon-slayer," "Popeye," "Dead and Buried," "The Wizard of Speed and Time" and "Never Cry Wolf." Admission tickets are available through the HFAC Theater Ticket Office at no cost.
